ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As we learned in Hungary in 1995, the success of enterprises of this sort requires individual labor and collective effort. The 1997 Macalester Faculty Development International Seminar would not have come to pass without the combined energy of Dr. Sherry Gray, who organized the seminar, Macalester faculty participants, and, most of all, our Brazilian colleagues and hosts. The latter willingly shared with us frank and critical analyses, peppered with intimate insights into the workings of their society—one that is on the move and exciting, but confronted with daunting contradictions. This contingent of Macalester faculty, as expected, went to Brazil eager to explore and learn, as well as to deepen their collegiality. It is gratifying to report that we made good on all accounts.

On behalf of the faculty participants, I would like to extend heartfelt thanks to Paul Gerdes '98 for his willingness to extend his stay in Brazil following his study-abroad program in order to assist our faculty, especially those undertaking their research in Salvador. His proficiency in the Portuguese language and his knowledge of the local culture were of immense help to us all.

Finally, we express our appreciation to Dr. Wayne Roberts, Provost of the College, and Mr. Richard Ammons, Vice President for College Advancement, who joined us during the last ten days of the experience. Their presence was an affirmation of the College's commitment to invest in the faculty's collective international experience.
