II. NEWS

NEW BIBLIOGRAPHIC PERIODICAL ON ASIA RELIGIONS

Asian Religious Studies Information (ARSI) is a new bibliographical periodical for Asian and comparative religious studies, beginning in 1986. Issued twice a year in July and December, ARSI serves scholars, teachers, librarians, and others who need up-to-date information about research and publishing activities in this field. In particular, scholars and publishers will want to utilize ARSI by subscribing to it, and by submitting information on their research and publications.

ARSI is designed as a research tool and information clearing house for the field of Asian religions. It gives detailed descriptions of current publications in Asian and Western languages, and supplements previously published bibliographies. ARSI also reports on in-progress research in the field, and publishes queries and responses from ARSI readers.

Asian Religious Studies Information is computer-compiled and maintained in a database. It is produced by The Institute for Advanced Studies of World Religions (IASWR), an information center for world religious studies which provides research library facilities, microform resources, and special bibliographies.

For further information on subscriptions and the submission of review publications, contact:

AUTHORS NEEDED FOR ASIAN HISTORICAL DICTIONARIES

Scarecrow Press seeks authors for a series of Asian Historical Dictionaries designed as handy first-reference tools for students, teachers, librarians and the general public. Each volume, devoted to an individual country, provides basic information about history, society, economy, politics, geography, major persons, events and institutions in a dictionary format. It also includes a substantial bibliography. Potential authors should contact (enclosing a brief curriculum vitae): Mr. Jon Woronoff, Series Editor, 3839 Rodman Street, NW, Washington, DC 20016, USA.

IRRIGATION MANAGEMENT PROJECT FOR NEPAL

The Cornell Irrigation Studies Group will be cooperating with Louis Berger International and East Consult (P) Ltd., Kathmandu, in the implementation of a USAID-funded Irrigation Management Project in Nepal beginning fall 1986. The project will assist the Department of Irrigation, Hydrology and Meterology of HMG to develop a Systems Management Division and an Irrigation Management Centre (the latter to be in a Terai location) over a five-year period. A program of research on farmer-managed irrigation systems will be supported under the project as well as special studies on a wide range of irrigation management-related subjects, including property rights, resource mobilization and management, indigenous technologies, etc.
