

CONTRIBUTORS

Adan Omar Hashi is a research scholar and holds a bachelor's degree in German and English Languages from the University of Salford and an M.S.C. in Development Management from the University of East London.

Mohamud A. Jama was a sociologist by training and a former official of the United Nations Office of Internal Oversight Services. He also served as a Deputy Prime Minister in the Transitional Federal Government of Somalia during 2004–2006 and as a Somaliland representative in Kenya from June 2012 to December 2014. He passed away in the spring of 2017.

Georgi Kapchits is a graduate of Moscow State University and a serving member of the international editorial board of Bildhaan. He is a world renowned expert on Somali syntax. He has lectured on Somali language and folklore at Moscow Institute of International Relations, Humboldt University, Free University of Berlin, and numerous other institutions. Kapchits' numerous publications include Somali Folktales: The Language of African Folklore; War and Peace in Somali Oral Tradition; and Four Hyenas.

Abdirasak Salah is a Somali researcher who lives in Hyderabad, India.

Daniel K. Thompson is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Anthropology, Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia. He is also a Visiting Researcher, College of Social Sciences and Humanities, Jigjiga University, Ethiopia.