

Macalester Partners with QuestBridge to Enroll Exceptional Low-Income Students

St. Paul, Minn. – Macalester College has joined QuestBridge, a national non-profit that connects the nation's most exceptional, low-income youth with leading institutions of higher education.

QuestBridge (<https://www.questbridge.org/college-partners/macalester-college>) partners with highly selective colleges and universities that offer excellent educational opportunities and financial resources to high-achieving, low-income students. All partners share a commitment to increasing the presence of these students on their campuses, and to making college affordable to all admitted students, regardless of their financial background.

"QuestBridge has been extraordinarily successful in helping outstanding low-income students realize their potential and attend wonderful colleges around the country," said Lorne Robinson, Dean of Admissions and Financial Aid. "We're excited and looking forward to our partnership."

Beginning this year, students will be able to apply through QuestBridge's National College Match admission program. Admitted QuestBridge students will be a part of Macalester's Fall 2017 entering class. Like all partner colleges, Macalester will meet 100% of a student's demonstrated financial need.
