The Concept
Why an Online Unconference?

- No travel
- Lower cost
- Participant-driven
- Unique content
Collaborate Ultra : PROS

- Higher number of participants allowed than other online collaboration software
- Allowed participation from people who otherwise wouldn’t be able to make it
- Participants didn’t need to install separate or special software
- Ability to call in if participant audio/mic stops working
- Allowed us to control microphone and whiteboard access
- Breakout rooms for meetings and poster sessions
- Moderator-only chat
With online collaboration, potential problems with connectivity somewhere along the line between the user and the speaker—frustrating especially when it has nothing to do with the collaboration software itself

- Recommend letting participants know ahead of time that you may pull them into a troubleshooting room if they seem to be having problems
- Can’t fix problems that aren’t with our system or our connection specifically

- Speakers can forget to mute themselves
- Not able to record breakout rooms (poster sessions, meetings)
- Rooms randomly disappeared in the middle of a speaker’s session (before they were needed, luckily)

Need for Project
As the only National Network of Libraries of Medicine (NNLM) resource library in North Dakota, the UND Health Sciences Library provides health information to professionals and the general public in the state. However, there is limited data showing the information resources available to the rural and medically underserved regions of the state. Therefore, this project aims to assess information needs by directly contacting health professionals across North Dakota so that Health Sciences Librarians at UND will have a clear understanding of how these needs are and are not being met.

Methods
Librarians created a brief online survey to learn about health professionals’ information needs. The survey was distributed through 13 professional organizations in North Dakota (ND Academy of Family Physicians, ND Center for Nursing, ND Hospitals Association, and more). Approximately 300 health professionals completed the survey.

Results
Interestingly, approximately 60% of the returned surveys were completed by allied health professionals. Of these, approximately 60% practice in rural communities. These professionals are looking primarily for patient care and drug information. Librarians asked what specific information sources they wished they could access, and many demonstrated that they are not aware of the free, high quality information sources that are provided by the National Library of Medicine (NLM) and the National Institute of Health (NIH).

Future Directions
UND Health Sciences Librarians now have some basic data about information needs across the state of North Dakota and specifically in rural and medically underserved areas. The next phase of this project will involve additional conversations with health professionals regarding how they would like to receive communication and instruction about information sources that are already freely available.

Redesigning an Active Learning Information Literacy Series

Abstract

In August 2016, librarians at the UND School of Medicine & Health Sciences embarked on a curriculum redesign project to better integrate active learning principles into library lectures. One year into the project, a five-block series for the medical program has been redesigned to feature case-based learning exercises.

Methods

• Case vignettes & activities modeled after PCL format.
• Scenarios adapted from EBM textbooks, existing lectures found on MedEdPortal.org, or from real-life examples known to librarians.

“1 really liked how [the instructor] brought a personal story in and used it as an opportunity to teach us.”

Block 8 – Viewing case vignettes

“I felt that I grasped how to use the library resources by actually using them and finding them during the presentation.”

Advantages

• Case-based learning is used throughout their curriculum. Case scenarios also used in licensing examinations.
• Makes the exercises & content more relevant to them.

Challenges

• Redesign is very time-consuming. Focused on one lecture at a time.
• Library lectures not required attendance. Had to be flexible with planned activities.
• Library content sometimes not immediately relevant to the first two years of their coursework.
• Few students (20-25) returned evaluations. How much weight do you give the comments?

Conclusion

• Although early in process, preliminary feedback indicates the importance of continuing with this project.
• Future areas for attention: improving AI exercises, especially in orientation and Block 3; less repetition of topics; expand to other programs.
