New Activity Unit on Nepal for Teachers

The Urban Education Program in Chicago has created an activity unit called Nepal: From Kathmandu to Mt. Everest for use in teaching children in grades 5-12. Designed with a global focus, this unit helps students to investigate Nepal, its geography, history and people by highlighting its contrasts and comparisons with approximately 36 other countries of the world. Geared for middle school through secondary level, the material is divided into teacher-directed activities and independent or small group exercises which can be performed by students on their own.

Charting, mapping, working with the Nepalese language, performing mathematical conversions and vocabulary-building are typical skills included in the activities. More difficult problem-solving skills are addressed through such activities such as that on deforestation and industrial development in Nepal today. A global jigsaw game introduces the unit. Activities on Nepalese culture are presented as supplementary.

This unit was presented at a teaching workshop at the 11th Annual Conference on South Asia in Madison, Wisconsin.

To order Nepal: From Kathmandu to Mt. Everest, send $7.95 for each copy of the unit that you want (includes postage and handling), along with your name and address, to:

Urban Education Program
420 W. Wrightwood

Checks should be payable to Urban Education Program. The teaching unit will be available starting in May of this year.
