Bernbaum, Edwin
1980 The Way to Shambhala

Written for a general audience, but also scholarly enough to catch the attention of Asian specialists, Bernbaum has analyzed the myth, practices, and symbolizations of an influential and important part of Tibetan Buddhism—the concern for a religious realm where enlightened rules guard the "secret teachings," fulfill the believer's aspirations, and from which a king will come to destroy ignorance and selfish desire and bring into the world systems an age of wisdom and compassion, i.e., Shambhala or Shangri-la. His translations and interpretations of written texts as well as the orally transmitted stories, dreams, and teachings of living lamas and yogis have probed deeply into the "twilight language" and teaching techniques of the Vajrayana. Major questions analyzed include: intercultural and interreligious influences upon the myth; various symbolic meanings of the "Wheel of Time"; and how those who are prepared make the journey to Shambhala both during this lifetime and then after death and rebirth. Bernbaum's study is the best understanding of the myth of Shambhala in particular and how it reflects the major concerns of Tibetan Vajrayana as seen through the mind and experience of a participant observer. Tamang Ritual Texts: Preliminary Studies in the Folk-Religion of an Ethnic Minority in Nepal

This volume is based on three fieldwork trips and is a translation of five oral recitations recorded among the Western Tamang of central Dhading District, Nepal. The translations of the texts are preceded by an ethnographic introduction to the Western Tamang. The recitations are those of non-Buddhist specialists. The author includes descriptions of the rituals in which they take place and comments on the recitations in a copious set of notes.

Ishii, Hiroshi
Newaru Sonraku no Shakai Kozo to sono Henka: Kasuto Shakai no Henyo (Social Structure and Its Change in a Newar Village: Social Change in a Caste Society)

Based on field research conducted between January, 1970 and February, 1972. Submitted as the author's doctoral dissertation in cultural anthropology at Tokyo University in 1977, although major sections were previously published as articles in various journals (bibliography of those articles is on p. 337; including "Structure and Change of a Newar: Festival Organization," in Himalayan Anthropology (1978) James Fisher, ed., The Hague, Mouton). The monograph deals with: (1) Economic structure of the village (identified only as "Village S"); (2) Village level politics; (3) Family and kinship; (4) Intercaste relations; and (5) Ritual organization.

*The American-Nepal Education Foundation
To Expand Publications Program

The American-Nepal Education Foundation plans to expand its publications program immediately, according to Hugh B. Wood, the Executive Director of the Foundation. Currently, it is listing mostly out-of-print materials and selling its few remaining originals, reprints, and photo-copies of materials on education in Nepal. However, ANEF is now interested in publishing new materials, not previously published and/or not completely suitable for other types of publication: for example, lectures, seminar papers, theses too short for the usual outlets, etc.

ANEF would like to receive manuscripts to consider for this program. The following criteria should be observed:

1. All materials must pertain to some phase of "education in Nepal"--interpreting the term "education" in its broadest socio-economic-cultural sense.
2. All materials must be in clear, typed, 8½ x 11 form, similar to "dissertation" standards.
3. All materials must be accompanied by a formal or informal "release" for publication and distribution, to ANEF, from the author or copyright owner (if any).
4. ANEF will make no charge to the author for publication; ANEF will make no payment to the author, or anyone else, as grants, royalties, free copies, or any other form of remuneration. Any income above costs will accrue to the Foundations' programs.

Requests for a current price list, or inquiries, or materials being submitted for the publication/distribution program should be addressed to:

New Source on Indian Folk Arts Includes Materials from Kashmir

Carol Hansen, Coordinator of the South Asian Area Center from August 1976 to November 1979, and Peggy Mueller and Marilyn Turkovich of the Associated Colleges of the Midwest Urban Education Program have teamed up to produce a new teachers' manual on Indian arts, entitled SHTI - Folk Dances, Music, Crafts & Puppetry of India. It is the final product stemming from the research they conducted in India in 1979 under a grant from the Educational Resources Center of New Delhi. Traveling to Delhi, Rajasthan, Gujarat, Uttar Pradesh and Kashmir, they collected information and traditional designs for Indian crafts, dramaturgy, folk songs and dances, and puppetry. They then compiled a manual of creative projects for children which incorporates these artistic traditions along with many varied facts about Indian culture, its religion and society. Units in the book are Folk Crafts, Puppets, Folk Dances and Folk Music. Each Unit includes background information, age level usage charts, specific activity descriptions and illustrations, must sheets and black-line masters of "how-to" designs for each artistic project.

This 310 full-page handbook including cassette tape recordings of music and a map of India is now available for $15.00 from
